HIBERNIANS HEAR ADDRESSES

sion No. I on Hibernianism.

For New England: Fair Monday and Tresday, brisk north winds.

Predictions from the New York Rerald: On Monday parily cloudy to clearing weather and nearly stationary temperatures will prevail, proceded by rain or snow on the coasts, with fresh to brisk variable winds, and on Tuesday fair and slightly coder weather.

words introduced the first orator of the evening, Edward T. Burke. Con-gratulating President Dwyer and his members upon their successful record in Hibernianism in this city, Mr. Burke kindled the enthusiasm of his hearers kindled the enthusiasm of his hearers to the biazing point as he reminded them that at this time of the year the memories of St. Patrick and of Emmett must be uppermost in the minds of loyal Irishmen, especially those who were born in the Emerald Isle, and he urged upon the rising generation a greater effort to become familiar with the glories of ancient Irehand. He referred to the spirit animative Fenlanism as the same as that Predictions for Saturday: Rain or anow, with brisk north winds.
Saturday's weather: Overcast, followed by fair at noon; northerly winds. Predictions for Sunday: Partly cloudy weather, with rain in the evening, turning to snow; northerly winds. Sundays' weather: Fair, wind north.
